ONE FOR BEN RILEY

One citizen of Oklahoma City took an emphatic method of giving vent to his disapproval of the campaign methods used this year in Oklahoma and the political conditions generally. In one of the north precincts in Oklahoma the election officers found one Democratic State ballot which was folded up and placed in the box without a vote on it. Across the face of the ballot was written in large letters with a blue pencil—"Oh Hell." The local election board counted the ballot a mutilated one but when it came before the state election board the presumption is it was counted as one straight ballot for Ben Riley for Governor.—Cherokee Republican.

We understand that it is a mistake about this being a Democrat ticket. We understand that it was a Republican ticket and that the gentleman that thus gave vent to his feeling was a good old dyed-in-the-wool Republican farmer of Logan county that had rode fourteen miles in his shirt sleeves in a drizzling rain to vote for Al Jennings against John Fields for Governor, and that the above words were written by him in utter despair when he discovered that Al's name was not on the Republican ticket, and we further understand that the ticket was not counted for Ben Riley but on request of the Republican members of the Board, after the words "Oh Hell" were added the words "What's the use" and then the ballot was counted for Judge Burford for the United States Senate.
